Wine storage began in the underground caves of Europe. These caves provided the consistent storing conditions that allowed wine to age at an elegant pace. By convention, these conditions have become the standard for modern wine cellars: 55-58 degrees and 55-75% relative humidity. Cellaring Solutions combines today's technology, along with beautifully crafted wood rack solutions, to create a perfect cellar solution in your home.

Cellaring Solutions designs & installs wooden wine racks for homes and private dwellings. We also produce beautiful, durable commercial wine display racks for wine stores, grocery stores, vineyards, wine wholesalers and the hospitality industry. Our cellar solutions start with meticulously engineered cooling solutions by perfected by blending architectural elements and artistic creations in our wine cellar designs.

Add to the beauty of your home with rack kits in any room. Choose from our wood options or today's popular "vintage view" that displays the bottle's profile and label.

Wood Types

All-Heart Redwood comes from the center of the tree and is characterized by a deep, rich reddish brown color and a dramatic grain. The heart has natural beauty and texture without a finish and over time the appearance improves as it takes on a deeper luster. Most other woods need stain and finishes to bring out their character. All-heart Redwood is naturally resistant to rot and mildew which has made it the wood of choice for fine wine cellars for over a century. Redwood unlike cedar has no aroma that can invade the wine through the cork.

Premium Clear Redwood has a variety of colors from white to pink to dark purple swirled and streaked together. Many customers find this exotic color variation adds character to their wine cellar.

Mahogany with Classic Mahogany Stain Mahogany is another exotic wood we specialize in. Although we sell Mahogany unfinished, our specially formulated stain brings out the classic beauty of Mahogany. Mahogany shares with all-heart redwood the natural resistance to decay and mildew.
